Washington, Dec. 1.—The seed seesion of the Fitty-first congress with begin at moon to-day. At precisely 2 o'clock Vice President Morton in Seenate, and Speaker Reed in the house of representatives, will call those two bodies to order. The roll will be called and three new members will be sworn in—Whitelmy, in place of Walker, of Missouri; Hayes, the successor of Conger, of fowa, and Pindan, who has been elected to the vacancy occasioned by the death of Miler, of New York, Mr. Breckinridge, of Arlansas, will also have to be resworn.

The congress has much important business before it, a very small proportion of which will likely be disposed of before its expiration at noon on the 4th of March. There are the necessary appropriation bills, without which the business of the government would be suspended, at least in part, and the reapportionment bill which has as yet received consideration in neither house, have said must be passed at his cossion.

Then there are many measures of importance on the calendars which have have said must be passed at his cossion, and which was resisted in the senate by the Democrates so fitury that it was necessary for the Republicans in order to bring about the first session, and which was resisted in the senate by the Democrates so fitury that it was necessary for the Republicans in order to bring about the first session.

We would like to known why the members of the church call a pastor and fail to go hear him preach. Rev Belt has appointments at this place. Our neighbor church, Bethel, is having a grand and successful revival. Revs Atchison and Franks are able ministers, and are doing some good work.

Widow Hughes lost a fine young horso a fow nights ago. Some unknown persons throwed rocks against the church during services a few week ago. Look out boys, the grand jury is in session.

Valuable Pools About Potate Growing That Have Been Arrived at by Exper-Imental Culture and Foreing for Large Yields as Practical in Become Years.

Of recent wyours the potato has been subjected to experimental culture and forcing for large yields more than any other of our food producing plants. Its diseases and Insect encules have caused the best study and thought of pelentists to be enlisted for its protection. Following are some of the conclusions definitely arrived at by our progressive farmers, together with notes engacsted by results gained from various experiment

The best soil for the pointo is a mellow, dry and fertile loam. Soils the do not require unklandmining are preferred. as standing water in hot a mons is fatal to the crop, Stable manure, well rotted, is the most be on fertilizer for the potato drop. Fresh manuscought to be spread upon the pround in the autumn or early winter to decompose and saturate the soil in readiness for the prospective crop. Manure fresh in the spring should be re-reed for the cerucrop. In some instances commercial fertilizers have aided in producing phenomenal ylekla. Whatever manures are used these ought to be in an available condltion during the carly growth of the pant. Early plantings are the most trustworthy, but plantings that matuce late nlways yield well, provided these oscope a fall drought. Cool, moist weather for a few weeks previous to the harvesting of the tubers is decidedly favorable to a large crop. The old fashioned plan of making conteal hills with the hoe, to be enltivated both ways, has either been abandoned or greatly modified. Drill culture is now almost universal. Planting deep or shallow has been decided by advanced potato raisers in favor of the former, with level culture of the surface; yet a majority of farmera still plant she/low and hill up with the plow when the plants are pretty well grown. Planting whole tubers makes the largest yield in bushels. Single eyes from tubers of good size and quality make larger potatoes but fewer in the hill. A compromise between the two methods of from two and three eyel pieces up to thirds and halves of medium cize is quite commonly practiced. After many years' testing of the various modes from whole tubers to single eyea on the Rural New Yorker's experiment grounds, where some phonomenal yields have been gained, the advice continues to be the planting of "three eyes with all the flesh on each piece possible for hig yields."

Harrowing lightly after planting, and just before the choots break through destroys the first crop of weeds and ninkes after culture easy. The later runs of the cultivator should be shallow, to avoid injury to the roots. Each cultivation may be continued until the tops fall down so as to be in she way.

Many inventions are on the mraket for harvesting potatoes, some of which are being employed on large areas with profit. The four-tined fork still retains its popularity, however, as a standard digger among the majority of small must be dry when stored and the storage room kept at a low, even temperature, with the light excluded.

Characteristic Potats in Sireon. The chief differences between the Leicesters and Lincolns are seen in the kirgern Leicester is stoaller in carcass and finer in bone than the Lincoln, which is paramount in point of size and weight of all our breeds of sheep. The Lincoln wool is displayed in large and bold masses, and is denser, stronger and very much longer and heavier than that of the Leicester. The face of the Lincoln is more snots are often even on the curs of the Leicester.

The Hampshiredown is much larger metry. The old faults of neck, shoulder and rump have long disappeared under careful luceding, and for width of carcass and utility of form they will give way to no breed. Still the Southdown and well covered between the cars, which | Corporation. nro long and fall away from the head. giving great width to the pole. This lopples of the car may be carried too far, but must be considered as characteristic. The short cars of the Southdown are more erect, and are set rather more within the outline of the lickl. The nose of the Hampshire is thick and bold in the ram, and more rounded than in the Southdown. The Humpshire is cleaver under the threat than the Shropshire, as already mentioned. It is next to the Lincoln in netual weight. The chief point of excellence in the Humpshiredown is its extreme carliness of matority. No breed can touch it in this particular.

Why Hogs Are Profitable

"One of the reasons," says a contemporary, "why hogs are the most profitable unimula to feed and fatten is the fact that there is less waste in them them in any other mimal used for meat purposes. A well futted 200 pound Berkshire hog shrinks but thirty pounds. That is to say, there will be in such a shed lieg 120 pends of nseful material. This beats all other salmals. And then again there is a greater percentage of what a lieg ests going by Lit and fiesh than with any odose most furnishing animal."
